

Israeli Tanks Ring Jordan Border

By United Press International
Large scale Israeli tank movements were reported to day along the Jordanian border where Israeli military dispatches reported the Jordanian army retreating southward toward Amman in the face of a Syrian tank onslaught. Guerrillas reported Jordan's air force in action.

With the possibility of American intervention increasing, Egypt warned the United States against stepping in, saying this would threaten world peace. Egyptian Information Minister Mohammed Hassanein Heikal said intervention would endanger American lives even further.

A Syrian Foreign Ministry spokesman in Damascus said Syria will "violently and strongly" resist any American intervention. Almost immediately the leadership of the guerrillas warned against intervention and said all American interests in the Arab Middle East would be destroyed if Washington did intervene.

Heavy fighting resumed in Amman itself with failure of a cease-fire called by King Hussein, and Heikal said the death toll there was over 10,000.

Guerrilla sources admitted 8,000 dead and said there were tens of thousands wounded. U.S. military forces were alerted to move into and try to save 400 Americans in Jordan and the possibility of intervention seemed very real. Israel also was reported prepared to act if it felt its security threatened—and a Syrian move southward from Irbid would bring Syrian tanks close to the Israeli border.

Heikal said Egypt was trying to send a plane to Amman to rescue 100 foreign correspondents, mostly American, trapped in the Inter-Continental Hotel in the center of the city. Their hotel has been hit repeatedly in the showdown civil war between Hussein and the Palestinian guerrillas.

Hussein, faced with a battle for survival and deserted by many of his Arab allies, appealed to the United States, the Soviet Union, Britain and France for help. But Washington dispatches said President Nixon had not yet decided on a course of action.

Israeli dispatches were subjected to intense military censorship, but reports reached London of largescale tank movements Monday night and again today. The reports said it was uncertain whether they were deployment for possible action in Jordan.

UPI correspondent Chad G. zani, from the seashore resort of Tiberias on the Sea of Galilee, could report only that dust clouds rising on the east bank of the Jordan River marked the passage of Jordanian army convoys rolling south.

On Monday the Jordanian army had moved northward to Irbid, Jordan's second city nestled in 2,000 foot mountains 45 miles north of Amman and only 18 miles east of the cease-fire line.

The danger of the civil war they don't exist for the Syrians, embroiling other nations was clear. Israel has said repeatedly it cannot stand idly by if a revolutionary guerrilla government topples the government of King Hussein.

In a radio broadcast Monday night Israeli Maj. Gen. Haim Herzog, former chief of intelligence, said, "I don't think that Israel can sit back and view with equanimity a radical change in the borders in the area."

"Borders are sacred, and if they don't exist for the Syrians, they don't exist at all in the area," he said. "Therefore I would say developments are very serious as far as Israel is concerned."

He said it would be serious if Syrian armor came down from the Irbid Heights, a development already underway. Diplomatic efforts were underway in many areas to try to end the civil war before it explodes into a general Middle East War and today Britain asked Russia for the second time in two days to try to get Syria to call back its invasion forces.

Arab nations led by President

Gamal Abdel Nasser of Egypt called a summit conference today in Cairo to try to end the war but the meeting appeared doomed to failure before it started when the principals involved in the fighting boycotted it.

King Hussein sent his military premier Brig. Mohammed Daoud. Guerrilla leader Yasser Arafat refused to go and told the Arab leaders "go back to your palaces because you no longer make the decisions."

The Syrian President, in Cairo, also refused to attend.

Nixon Still Searching For Jordan Solution

WASHINGTON (AP) — Although President Nixon is steadily reinforcing U.S. military power in the eastern Mediterranean, officials say he still is searching for a diplomatic solution to the Jordanian crisis.

At the same time Nixon apparently has run into opposition from two key allies, Britain and France, to his contingency plans for intervention in Jordan. Diplomats here also reported deep uncertainty over whether King Hussein himself has clearly signaled a need to Nixon for assistance in saving his regime.

Some medical units in Europe also were put on alert.

State Department press officer Robert McCloskey said if U.S. forces have to be sent into the country to get American citizens out, the Nixon administration hopes the operation can be conducted peacefully and by prearrangement with the government of Jordan.

So far as the 38 Americans among 54 hostages behind held after three recent airliner hijackings are concerned, however, the problem is not with the death under which they already

The Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine has threatened to kill Americans throughout the Middle East if the United States sends military field hospitals to Jordan.

The administration and the Jordanian ruler, whose regime is beset by Palestinian guerrillas opposed to his peace policy have been exchanging messages. Informants said Hussein's preferences for action were not clearly defined.

A State Department spokesman Monday refused to say whether Hussein had asked U.S. intervention. Other authorities later indicated the State Department and White House should be able to interpret the latest Hussein messages any way they wish — depending on what they consider the wisest course to follow.

At the United Nations, diplomats reported Jordan might ask for protective action by the Security Council, a possibility complicated by the fact Syria is a member of the council and Jordan is not. Syria stands accused by Jordan and the United States of sending some army units into Hussein's country.

France's attitude toward intervention — in wording which implied slaps at both the United States and Russia — was expressed Monday by President Georges Pompidou who warned against any further foreign involvement in Middle East warfare. He said intervention is already creating a dangerous situation for world peace.

Diplomats said Britain feels a U.S. thrust into Jordan for any purpose might well make the situation worse and cost more lives.

The Defense Department announced that infantry and paratrooper units in this country and Europe have been placed on alert for possible use in removing Americans from Jordan. Extra Air Force C130 transport planes were deployed to airlift the troops. A third aircraft carrier, the John F. Kennedy, was reported speeding to join two flattops already in the Mediterranean.

Not for long, however. As of Oct. 1, that man and everyone else will be free to follow their compass through the Village of Ellenville.

Ellenville's One-Way Out, Will Fade Away October 1

By JON POWERS

ELLENVILLE

If Monday night's hearing on Ellenville's controversial one-way street system was an accurate gauge of public sentiment, then there won't be many tear-stained faces among village merchants and drivers when the plan is formally dismantled Oct. 1.

The consensus of opinion among those at the hearing was that the experimental pattern, initially contrived to relieve the woes of clogged streets and suffocating business, did little more than compound the problem and cause a few new ones. So the Village Board reluctantly agreed to bring the short-lived plan to a halt, although several village trustees predicted that the problems won't disappear as soon as the last directional sign topples from its perch.

Monday's public hearing was originally billed as a potential time, with visions of the donnybrook, with visions of the disgruntled citizens releasing pent-up emotions and frustrations after weeks of crowded intersections, roundabout detours and just plain confusion.

But the meeting, in fact, was calm and orderly and not without some humor. When it became evident that just about everyone there was against the pattern, and in favor of abolishing it, prospects of bitter words and accusations ended. No one was really mad, because everyone was in agreement.

Almost everyone, that is. Trustee DeWitt Clinton was the only board member to vote against termination of the plan because, "It's a step backward." Clinton also predicted a resumption of problems encountered before the plan went into effect on a trial basis, specifically traffic bottlenecks caused by double-parked trucks.

Mayor Robert Dowling voted a "reluctant yes" to the termination, motion stating that "We're not giving it enough time." Dowling added they had hoped to be able to test the system during the winter months when he contended, it would have facilitated snow removal.

Trustee David Kramer said, "We're only hurting ourselves but if the people want it (termination of the pattern) let's give it to them. He then voted in favor of abolishment.

Trustee Edwin Hoar, who made the motion to do away with the plan, said that he had received a "lot of good comments" about the effectiveness of one-way streets. "It would have been a good thing for the village," said Hoar, "but if the merchants are against it, we might as well vote it down."

"They're the ones who will get hurt," he concluded. At the outset of the hearing, a petition allegedly containing the names of 600 signees who were against the one-way plan was presented to the board, and the tone was set for the remainder of the meeting. The petition cited "inconvenience in shopping," "troublesome," "nervewracking" and "downright dangerous" as just a few of the reasons why the plan should be scrapped.

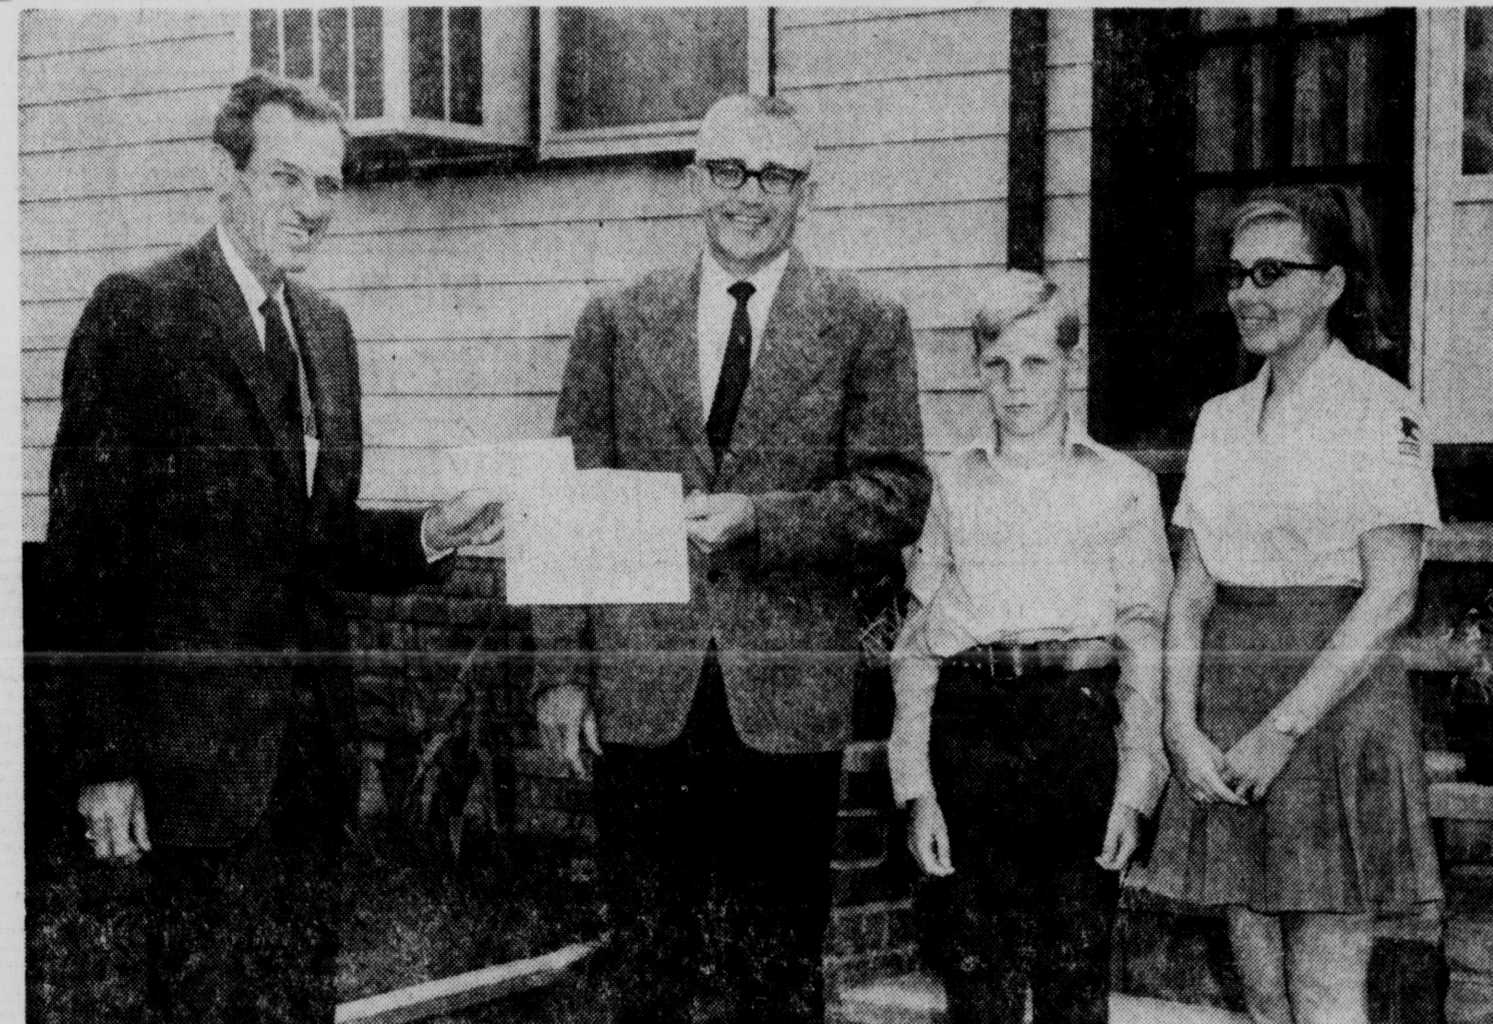

In addition to these arguments against the pattern, complaints were issued about "hot-rodgers" and "speedsters" who have apparently taken advantage of the wider streets, with Center Street being compared to "Indianapolis Speedway."

One man contended that the pattern has "hurt business" and that the whole thing is "illogical" and he closed by charging the board that "You didn't do it right."

Another taxpayer charged that the pattern routed more traffic to Route 209, "where most of the traffic is anyway," rather than away from the heavily congested highway.

Finally, one man even questioned the constitutionality of the one-way street experiment. "I've driven freely in Ellenville for 64 years," he said, "and now you're going to dictate where I can go."

Not for long, however. As of Oct. 1, that man and everyone else will be free to follow their compass through the Village of Ellenville.

NEW YORK (AP) — The U.S. Coast Guard and Canadian air force joined today in a search for three balloonists believed down in rough Atlantic seas some 500 miles southeast of St. John's, Nfld.

The three, two men and a woman, were last heard from at 7:05 p.m. Monday when they radioed: "Six hundred feet and descending. Signing off. Will try contact after landing."

No further messages were received, leaving in doubt the fate of the crew which was attempting the first transatlantic crossing in a balloon.

Three Coast Guard cutters were ordered to the scene. The cutter Dallas arrived in the area at 1:30 a.m. EDT and began a search. Expected later were the Duane and the Ingham.

In Halifax, N.S., Canadian

Air-Sea Rescue Service officials reported that a long-range patrol aircraft was being dispatched from Greenwood.

The huge orange balloon, christened "the free life," lifted off from a Long Island cow pasture Sunday afternoon. Aboard were Rod Anderson, 32, a New York commodities broker; his wife, Pamela Brown, 28, a television actress, and Malcolm Bright, 32, of Farnham, Eng.

In the early stages of the flight the balloonists maintained an altitude of from 3,000 to 6,000 feet and all appeared well.

The balloon used both helium, in an inner sac, and hot air, supplied by a propane gas heater, for its lift.

Trouble began after the balloonists reported Monday that they had abandoned the heating system, making them dependent solely on the helium to stay up.

At the last report the balloon had run into a severe cold front and rainstorm that combined to cause it to lose altitude.

The gondola—12 feet in diameter and four feet deep—was made of buoyant material. And the adventurers carried a rubber life raft, parachute flares, medical supplies and a radio.

The balloonists had planned a 3,000-mile flight to "somewhere in France" that would have eclipsed the present balloon distance record of 1,896 miles set by an eight-man German crew in 1914.

The first attempt at a transatlantic balloon crossing took place in 1873. Most recently, two Canadians tried in 1968 but ran out of wind about 50 miles off Nova Scotia.

Snuffs Fire in House

By JEAN F. DOLAN

Fast action on the part of a rural mail carrier on his appointed rounds averted a tragedy at a Lake Katrine home and resulted in commendation for bravery.

John Jameson of Foxhall Avenue, a two-year employee of the Kingston Post Office, acted promptly in the face of fire at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William K. Wakeley Jr., of 17 Corwin Place on July 13. He spotted the two Wakeley sons attempting to douse a blaze in the garage, immediately took over, smothering the fire with throw rugs and water.

He then called Mrs. Wakeley, a part time employee at the Lake Katrine Post Office, informed her of what had happened and continued with his mail delivery. His concern went beyond just putting out the fire. After he had completed his rounds he returned to the home to make sure the fire had not rekindled.

On Monday, Jameson was awarded a citation, a $100 check and a lapel button denoting his service beyond the call of duty, all Post Office Department awards.

In making the presentation, Postmaster Newkirk said it is rewarding to honor a post office employee for action over and above the performance of his duties. He said he felt it was outstanding that Jameson not only aided the Wakeley family in time of crisis but had the concern to return after delivering the mail and double check that all was well.

In her letter, Mrs. Wakeley gave full credit to Jameson for saving the house and her sons. The garage is attached to the house and complete destruction of the dwelling was a potential. Due to his fast thinking and action, Jameson saved my house and my boys," she said.

Kingston Man Electrocuted

LAKE KATRINE
A 36-year-old downtown Kingston man was electrocuted Monday while hooking a large piece of scrap steel to a 40-foot crane at a work site on Fording Place Road in this community.

Kingston state police identified the man as Joseph Bowman of 83 Broadway, who was declared dead on arrival at Benedictine Hospital.

Coroner William S. Keyser issued a verdict of accidental death due to respiratory paralysis and electro-thermal burns. BCI Senior Investigator Charles Teelon, Investigator Roger Gardner and Trooper Edward Zeboris conducted the investigation of the mishap.

Bowman, an employee of A. Bahl & Sons, 10 Catherine Street, was working with Milton Bahl and James VanDeMark, the latter operating the crane at the time. They were attempting to remove a large piece of steel. In the process of fastening the chain and hook to the steel plate the cable on the crane became charged with high voltage from the power lines overhead, State Police reported.

Bahl said he called Doctors

Ambulance to the scene. He to the cable. He said his firm was removing scrap plate in Electric Corp., workers in back of the Costanzi yard, Bahl noted that Bowman was "pre-burn, Bahl said power from the utility lines apparently arced moved to the hospital.

BARCLAY HEIGHTS
A large safe in the office of the Bowler's Club alleys at Simmons Plaza here was cracked during the weekend and nearly $2,000 in cash and other properties valued at more than $500 was reported missing, state police reported.

BCI Investigator Wayne Beyea reported that the building was entered sometime between 1 and 6:30 a.m. Monday. The owner, Herbert Houtman Sr., of Blue Mountain reported the loss when he opened the alleys on Monday.

In addition to the $1,976 cash in the safe, a Borgen Challenger tube-type amplifier with microphone, two Airline walkie-talkies and several bottles of liquor were taken, Investigator Beyea reported.

He said the burglars attempted to remove the back of the safe. When that failed they

Give Land for Resnick Memorial

ELLENVILLE
The Resnick family of Ellenville has donated a parcel of land near the center of the village as the site for a new public library building as a memorial to the late Congressman Joseph Y. Resnick, it was announced recently by the Board of Trustees of the Ellenville Public Library and Museum.

The property, bounded by Center, Childs and Canal Streets, is currently being used as a parking area for the Ellenville Motor Museum, owned and operated by Harry Resnick, the late congressman's brother. The Board of Trustees of the library has formerly accepted the gift of land.

Negotiations are currently underway in an attempt to obtain the services of Turley, Stie-vater, Walker and Mauri and Associates of Buffalo, Poughkeepsie and Syracuse to design plans for the new facility.

Goodell Opposes GIs Fighting in Jordan

By United Press International
Sen. Charles E. Goodell said Monday night he does not think the United States should intervene in the Mideast except possibly to rescue Americans held hostage by guerrillas.

"If we have to send planes in to rescue Americans, I'm sure troops will go to protect the planes and that's fine," Goodell said. "But we should not send troops in to fight on one side or the other in Jordan or Syria."

Goodell, Governor Rockefeller, Atty. Gen. Louis Lefkowitz and comptroller candidate Edward Regan attended the Monroe County Republican campaign kickoff rally in Rochester, Rockefeller, in his speech, told Republicans to work hard in all contests despite GOP control of the governor's mansion and the state legislature.

"If we think we're home free, we're wrong," Rockefeller said. "We're shaking hands and signing autographs when Rockefeller and the other statewide candidates left at the rally's end."

In an informal interview, Goodell made his statement on the Mideast and said he was happy with the support he has been getting from state and local Republican organizations. The senator said that some local candidates don't publicly support him because "they are running in districts where they have the Conservative party endorsement and I don't expect them to come out for me."

Rockefeller listed a number of endorsements he has received for reelection including those of Mario Procaccino, former New York City controller and a life-long Democrat, and the state AFL-CIO.

Earlier, Goodell held a news conference in Buffalo on the Buffalo River — which he said carried "the most polluted water in the civilized world."

The senator proposed creation of a federal water pollution control fund to finance water cleanup through fines on industrial users.

Goodell also called "untrue" some Democratic charges that Rockefeller's camp supported the Conservative U.S. Senate candidate, James L. Buckley. "Governor Rockefeller has always expressed his enthusiastic support for me as I have done for him," Goodell said.

Lefkowitz also visited Buffalo during the day and spoke about pollution, calling for elimination of all mercury discharges into state waterways, authorization of citizen suits against polluters and lower limits for jet aircraft noise.

"We have moved vigorously and expeditiously when we have had the proof," he said in defending his record on pollution. "I never have and never will sue just to get a headline." He said every case referred to his office by the state Health Department has been vigorous.

John P. Lomenzo for a second line on the ballot. The nominating petitions supporting Buckley as candidate of the Independent Alliance Party were accepted after the organization redesigned its emblem for the ballot.

The party originally proposed an emblem with Buckley's name superimposed over an outline of the state. Lomenzo said an emblem by law cannot contain the name of the candidate.

The party resubmitted an emblem with a badge or shield with a capital "I" imposed on it.

Manson Just Orders, No Work: Testimony

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Miss Pearl, who was stable manager for the ranch for 20 years, said the group called "The Family," she took the place over, never doing a bit of work herself.

Ruby Pear, a wizened woman in her 60s, testified Monday at the Tate-LaBianca murder trial that Manson gave the orders to the few men and numerous girls who accompanied him.

The state contends they were living at the ranch when the slayings occurred. Police Sgt. William Lee testified shell casings found at the ranch were fired from the same pistol used in the slayings.

Lee, a ballistics expert, previously had testified slugs taken from the bodies of three victims at the Tate estate were fired from a long-barreled revolver.

Motorcycle gang member Danny DeCarlo had told the jury he saw Manson carrying a pistol similar to the one introduced in evidence by the state and that the gun was available to all members of the "Family."

DeCarlo, who spent six months at the ranch, wound up his testimony Monday after to relate any specific occasion on which he could remember a defense sought to establish that conversation with one of the "family" members.

DeCarlo said he recalled one DeCarlo said.

Marshal Tito Will Resign No Timetable for Change

BELGRADE (AP) — President Tito has announced that he will step down after ruling Yugoslavia for 25 years and turn the country's government over to a collective leadership.

Tito, 78, did not indicate what his position would be, but it was believed in Belgrade, the nation's capital, that he would be a member of the new body.

"I am quite long in this post and I would like to have more possibilities to work on some other projects," he said in a speech Monday in Zagreb, the country's second largest city.

Tito, who broke from Moscow in 1948 and was named president for life in 1963, said reorganization of the country's Communist government was necessary to preserve Yugoslavia's unity.

He gave no timetable for the changeover. But he said speculation on who might succeed him could provoke a crisis, and that to avoid it, governmental restructuring was necessary.

He explained that he initiated the change because "if someone else did, it would look as if they wanted to remove me."

Tito said he would be replaced by a presidium that would be a form of collective president of Yugoslavia. The body would consist of representatives from the country's six republics and its main social and political organizations, including the Communist party.

Tito was a partisan leader against the Nazis in World War II and maintained close ties with the Soviet Union immediately following the war. But in 1948 his country became the first Soviet satellite to break away.

The United States was pleased by the break and provided Tito's government with more than $1 billion in assistance of various kinds. In later years Yugoslavia's relations with Moscow and Washington alternately warmed and cooled.

Tito's announcement was not expected to affect President Nixon's planned visit to Yugoslavia next week. However, any U.S. intervention in the Jordanian civil war could force a cancellation of the trip because of Tito's close ties with Arab leaders.

Rat Boom Seen

WASHINGTON (AP) — Officials of the two-year-old federal rat control program point to marked successes in some cities but believe a nationwide rodent population boom is underway, even in the suburbs.

"My impression, based on scattered and fragmented reports, is that the rat population is on the rise," said Robert E. Novick, head of the Bureau of Community Environmental Management.

"And this means not only in central cities but in the suburbs now."

Paradoxically, the small $15 million-a-year control program has reduced rat incidence an average of 25 per cent in target areas of 17 cities surveyed so far, Novick said in an interview.

The reduction since 1969 is as high as 80 per cent in such cities as Buffalo, N.Y., and Charlotte, N.C. But two cities, Atlanta and New York, registered increased rat populations despite the program.

The government estimates there are 14,000 cases of rat bite a year in the nation; many thousand cases of infectious disease spread by rats; and innumerable electrical fires caused by rats chewing through wires.

Nixon Asks U. S. Action In Campus Terrorism

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Nixon called today for legislation to permit federal authorities to act immediately in cases of bombing or arson on college campuses even if local authorities opposed intervention.

Rep. Gerald Ford, R-Mich., said after a meeting of Republican congressional leaders with Nixon that the proposal would be added as an amendment to a Senate-passed anti-crime bill, now being considered by the House Judiciary Committee.

Ford, the House GOP leader, and Sen. Hugh Scott, Republican Senate leader, outlined the legislation to newsmen following the two-hour, 45-minute White House meeting. Attorney General John N. Mitchell and FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover also attended.

Ford said Nixon and Mitchell recommended that the FBI and other federal authorities be permitted to intervene immediately on any campus which receives any form of federal subsidy—virtually all of the colleges and universities in the nation—following an overt act such as a bombing or firebombing.

Scott also referred to "other acts of terrorism" but he declined to define them. He said the legislation would not be triggered by "throwing rocks or breaking glass."

The bill now before the House Judiciary Committee was approved by a subcommittee Monday on a day that saw Nixon gain important victories in his effort to get anti-crime bills through Congress before adjournment.

The House also agreed to take up later in the week a comprehensive administration drug abuse bill.

MEMORIAL
In loving memory of my husband and our father, John J. Ellsworth, who passed away 11 years ago today, Sept. 22, 1959.

God took him home, it was his will.
But in our hearts we love him still.
His memory is as dear today
As in the hour he passed away.
We often sit and think of him
When we are all alone.
For memory is the only friend
That grief can call its own.

Memoriam

In memory of our dear daughter, Jeannette Hazel Severson, who passed away 21 years ago September 22, 1949.

She wished no one a last farewell
Nor even said goodbye.
She was gone before we knew it
And only God knew why.
It only takes a little space
To write how much we miss her.
But it will take the rest of our lives
To forget the day we lost her.

Today's Thought
By JIM GILPATRIC

America's number one atheist has reportedly obtained over 27,000 signatures on letters protesting the action of our astronauts in broadcasting Scripture on their moon voyage in December, 1968. . . . Their protest demands too that future demonstrations of religious faith by astronauts and public leaders be banned.

Along with many other funeral directors in the country, we agreed to sponsor a suggestion in newspapers from Maine to California. Here is an issue on which all God-loving, religious minded people can unite and take positive action to repudiate the atheist demands. We suggest you sign and mail letters to NASA, commending the astronauts action. Mention too that you support the right of any one to publicly express faith in God without fear of censure. Here is your chance to stand up and be counted, to have your voice heard. Mail your individual or group letters without delay to NASA, Astronaut Office, Houston, Texas, 77058. Can we count on you?

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, SEPTEMBER 22, 1970

Nixon to Show the Flag

The lieutenant commander of 1946, now commander-in-chief, senses the challenge of the Soviet naval buildup in the Mediterranean and is personally going to visit and review the U. S. Sixth Fleet "to show the flag" in the Mediterranean later this month. It is President Nixon's way of signalling the Soviet Union that the Sixth Fleet is still supreme there.

Middle East developments, including the threatened collapse of the United States peace initiative, made even more necessary the President's visit to the area to demonstrate to the Soviet Union the seriousness of the American commitment there. His speech at Manhattan, Kan., immediately after the announcement of his European plans, though warning against violence as a political tactic, could as well be interpreted as condemnation of the guerrillas in the Middle East.

"The time has come for us to recognize," the President said, "that violence and terror have no place in a free society, whoever the perpetrators and whatever their purported cause." He coupled in his condemnation crimes against civilized society by the bombings, attacks on policemen, campus violence and aircraft hijacks.

The President will meet with the Sixth Fleet commanders aboard the flagship Springfield. He will review fleet exercises from the aircraft carrier Saratoga. He will also visit NATO headquarters for Southern Europe in Naples and meet American ambassadors to the Mediterranean countries.

The whole emphasis will be on the place of the Mediterranean in the defense of the free world and the role the Sixth Fleet plays in that defense. The President will have an audience with Pope Paul in Rome and meet the new Italian Premier, as well as President Tito in Yugoslavia and Generalissimo Franco in Madrid and Prime Minister Heath in London. Consultations with the chiefs of state, as well as the American military and diplomatic officials in the area, look ahead to strengthening the American presence and influence in a highly strategic part of the world.

The Fight for Congress

Twenty-two years ago, Harry S. Truman of Missouri dumbfounded the nation by defeating Thomas E. Dewey of New York for President, not by fighting Dewey, but by denouncing a "do nothing" Republican controlled 80th Congress. His campaign became a classic "give 'em hell" performance.

A freshman member of the 80th Congress was a 35-year-old Richard M. Nixon, in his first elective office. He never forgot the angry man from Missouri and how effective he was in a campaign all the experts gave to New York Governor Dewey. He shared in the amazement at Dewey's defeat but studied the method of the cocky little man in the White House who had been cavalierly written off.

The result is beginning to be shown as the 1970 campaign for the control of Congress heats up. Nixon does not plan to take to the stump to denounce the 91st Congress. But he is digging his spurs into the Democratic-led members for their neglect of his legislative program. He is building the base for "doing nothing" charges and for the election of a Congress of his own party that will cooperate with him.

Nixon's weapon is a message to the Senate and the House, containing a long list of his legislative proposals on which Congress has not acted finally as its two-year session approaches an end. He took Congress to task for not acting on such vital bills as family assistance, manpower training, Social Security changes, electoral reform, consumer protection, environmental protection, education and anticrime measures.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana and House Democratic Whip Hale Boggs of Louisiana both reacted sharply. They blamed lack of White House leadership for unemployment, inflation, high interest, rising prices and a housing shortage.

Where Did Summer Go?

Autumn officially begins tomorrow. Where did the summer go? It seems as if it hasn't been with us very long. And the passing of summer always seems sad somehow, yet the feeling doesn't last. A peculiar excitement, an anticipation of fall activities soon takes its place.

It's too early to speculate about frost and the unbelievable fall colors in this Hudson Valley area have not begun to appear, but the shortening of daylight hours and an occasional early morning breeze are reminders that one more summer is gone. The large number of children returning to their classrooms is another sure sign that the summer vacation is ended for this year.

With the arrival of autumn, those who have been waiting for fall in the air will be vindicated. The passing of the summer season adds zest to life as autumn brings the beginning of the challenging and busy days of the fall season.

Henry J. Taylor Says Red Swindle of Yugoslavia

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia — This country's poverty is a poverty Tito's communism creates. You have to come here yourself to believe the unnecessary fiasco.

This is the largest country in the Balkans, larger than New York and Pennsylvania combined, and by nature one of Europe's richest gardens. Yugoslavia has great quantities of timber for export. It has large bauxite deposits, rare in Europe, for a world needing aluminum. It has coal, iron, gold, copper, zinc, and — until communism came — was a major exporter of wheat. Southern Italy, across the Adriatic, normally lived on Yugoslav wheat.

On the Russian pattern, Tito divided this country into six "independent republics." The overlapping masses of Communist party payrollers are the Herrenvolk here. The rest of the Yugoslavs are second-class citizens in perpetuity.

In one Belgrade planning group alone you will find 148 active directors of its bureaus plus some 200 ex-directors who all still draw their salaries. There are more than four million officeholders on Tito's payroll—about 25 such Red bureaucrats for every 100 of the 20 million population.

Next to the army, Tito's biggest single outlay has been for government buildings. In this capital city his building bubble burst itself into a half-billion-dollar debacle when Tito's vast assortment of white elephants comprising his "new and greater Belgrade" began to sink.

These enormous buildings were supposed to accommodate 60,000 government workers, plus their families—to total 180,000. Tito himself picked the site between the Danube and Save Rivers in Belgrade's suburb of Semlin. But in the sandy soil, and shortly before moving in day, like great tubs of iron set in butter, the buildings began to tilt and sink. Most of the 180,000 people are still wondering where they're to live.

Or take the big electric dynamo works called Litostroj, near Ljubljana in the north. When this monstrosity finally got started its 4,000 workers produced one complete set of turbines each two years. Each cost an estimated 50 times more than Tito could have bought them from Italy, Switzerland, West Germany, France or the United States.

Communists always try to industrialize a country no matter how unsuitable. This is fundamental in their theory that factory workers—as distinguished from farmers—are the easiest workers to control. That is the Reds' prime objective even if the phony industrialization makes economic nonsense, as it does in this country which is normally 80 per cent agricultural.

Thus, with no reference to organic need, Tito built politically conceived propaganda factories all over this country for optical goods, instruments, textiles, photographic equipment, etc. Each is crowned by a big neon red star blazing the slogan: "Zivio Tito" (Long live Tito).

This has done double damage to the fine, hard-working population. For the shift brought tens of thousands of traditional farm workers into towns. Basically, Yugoslavia's frequent demands on the United States for wheat (free) are due to this Communist phony industrialization, and not to famines. The people have had to kiss goodbye to the great, traditional sight of the barges on the Danube filled with marvelous, golden, wealth-bringing Yugoslav wheat. For communism does not share the wealth. It merely shares the poverty.

Nevertheless, Tito controls the army, the dreaded UDSA secret police (which are everywhere) and the food supply—the three classic needs for absolute dictatorship. And this is how he can milk this country for the Communists and stay in power and, meanwhile, live in enormous grandeur and extravagance never before displayed by even the wildest Balkan king.

The big, lush payoff for the Red swindle in this lovely land has gone to one of the champion grafters and greed-merchants of modern times—Tito himself.

Matter of Intelligence

Mark Fanatics to Curb Terror

By RAY CROMLEY
NEA Washington Correspondent
WASHINGTON (NEA)—The recent air hijackings illustrate again what tremendous (and horrible) effects can be achieved in terrorist war by small groups of men.

The kidnapping and murder of diplomats and aid officials in Latin America.

The dynamiting of college buildings and the assassinations of a president and other noted men in the United States.

The assassination, mutilation and kidnapping of hamlet chiefs and other civilians and their families by the Viet-Cong in South Vietnam.

And, finally, the bombing of planes and the holding of hostages in the Middle East.

The Tet attacks of early 1968 were just such attacks, mounted in the main by men in civilian clothes who infiltrated into the cities in suicide missions, using supplies brought in piecemeal over a period of months.

(The weakness of Tet was that it "used up" an extraordinarily large proportion of the Viet Cong's supply of fanatics. As a result, the VC have not yet recovered from that "success.")

The ability of such small numbers to create such awful results tells us one thing about subversive insurgencies.

In the democracies it will be impossible entirely to stop men determined to kill.

The totalitarian countries accomplish this security (though not too well at times) by intricate informer systems.

Some member of a family is responsible for watching his family and from five to 10 families on his block or in his neighborhood. These informers report every coming and going—whom his families talk to, their activities, what they say. If a man has a pistol, the informer knows it. If he buys materials which could be used in making explosives (or for running a mimeograph machine), the informer knows it. If he has a visitor, the informer knows it. There are searches of homes and workshops at any hour of the day and night.

That system is obviously reprehensible to Americans and other free world peoples. It would turn us into what we are fighting against.

But there is a partial solution to the problem, nevertheless. Luckily, such dramatic suicidal acts require fanatics. There are not that many fanatics in a city, a nation or even in the world. (Not all people who talk like fanatics are willing to put their lives on the line when the chips are down.)

When men are limited in numbers, it is possible to single them out. The weakness in our war against the Viet Cong assassin squads is a weakness in intelligence.

The weakness in our war against the Cosa Nostra here in the United States is also a weakness in intelligence. A shortage of intelligence is also what has made our diplomats and the world's airplanes easy victims to hijackers, saboteurs and assassins.

Though it is impossible to prevent entirely these terrorist acts, a comprehensive intercountry system of gathering information on known men and women so fanatical they would risk their lives on suicide-type deeds could reduce markedly the numbers of successful terror attacks.

It has been reported that one of the men who burned the giant Pan American plane was a professional who had been involved in two previous hijackings.

On the college campuses, whether the bombings are triggered by locals or visitors, there is evidence of a small but visible roving band of determined men and women willing to go to any lengths.

This statement does not claim that all college disturbances are caused by "outsiders." What it does assert is that, whatever the seed of the major violent disturbances of the past few years, a small group of well-known fanatics has moved from campus to campus to help foment or fan these eruptions. Some of these migrants have been demolition experts. Some have experience in demolitions without expertise.

The point is that those willing to risk their necks in this sorry business of terror are few in number. They are like the repeaters in crime. They can be identified. Their organizations can be infiltrated.

They are a different breed from the "nut" hijacker who takes a plane to Cuba with no attempt to destroy the plane or the passengers—and no apparent political "mission." These nuts are impossible to identify or predict.

Jack Anderson Says Agnew Still Doing Best To Raise Funds for Blair

WASHINGTON — Vice President Spiro Agnew, who condemns "disrespect for law" in almost all his speeches, has shown his own disrespect for the laws governing regulatory agencies.

In his eagerness to install his former administrative assistant, Stan Blair, as Governor of Maryland, Agnew at least has encouraged illegal conduct. He asked Federal Maritime Chairman Helen Bentley to put the arm on shipping executives for contributions to Blair's campaign. It happens to be against the law for her to solicit favors from the industry she regulates.

Yet in an interview with my associate Brit Hume, as this column reported last weekend, Mrs. Bentley admitted checking the shipping rosters for the names of possible contributors and asking some of them for political donations—all at the Vice President's behest. She also flew to a Blair fundraising meeting in the New York office of shipping magnate Spyros Skouras.

Here are our latest findings:

Mrs. Bentley invited shipping executives to meet with the Vice President last Thursday at New York City's Metropolitan Club. Agnew also got on the phone himself to urge some executives to attend. Among those who received a personal call from the Vice President was John Lambros, one of the executives of Bethlehem Steel's Baltimore shipyard. Bethlehem Steel, of course, does a multi-million-dollar business in defense contracts. When Agnew heard we were checking into the shipping solicitations, he abruptly called off the Metropolitan Club meeting. He showed up in New York City on Thursday to talk to other GOP fatcats, but he carefully avoided the shipping executives.

The Vice President authorized his pal, J. Walter Jones, to solicit contributions in his name for the Blair campaign. Campaign workers, hired by Jones, identified themselves with the Vice President's office in calls to prospective contributors around the country.

Jones also mailed letters to a blue-chip list, soliciting contributions in the Vice President's name.

Agnew not only approved the use of his name but is personally directing the Blair campaign from behind the scenes. He is still smarting over his failure to deliver his home state in the 1968 presidential election. Therefore, say insiders, he "fiercely determined to restore Republican rule in Maryland."

Nixon's Vacations
President Nixon is perturbed over Democratic criticism of his frequent vacations in California and Florida.

He recalled ruefully to a recent visitor that he had encouraged the late President Kennedy to relax from the awesome burdens of the presidency and had promised to intervene with any Republicans who criticized him.

The truth is that the President usually puts in an arduous day even at his vacation homes in San Clemente and Key Biscayne.

He has carefully divided every 24-hour period into two work days, separated by a rest period. He crowds as much work in each segment as any other executive would expect to complete in a full day. In other words, he literally accomplishes two days' work every day, and his staff handles each segment as if it were a separate day.

When he is in Washington, the President sticks rigorously to this double-duty work schedule. But at the seashore, he tries to hold his schedule to one "work day" and one "rest day" every 24 hours.

He enjoys the swimming pools at his vacation homes and is a little sorry that he got rid of the White House swimming pool. For relaxation at the White House, he will bowl occasionally in the basement bowling alley.

During each "work day" of the President's two-in-one White House day, he handles a separate set of papers and gives his staff a separate set of instructions. He likes to have problems reduced to writing in "option papers," setting forth every possible course he could take. However, he is beginning to adopt ex-President Johnson's old telephone habits. When he wants an answer, Nixon increasingly is inclined to pick up the phone and place a call wherever in the world the answer can be found.

Fuel Shortages

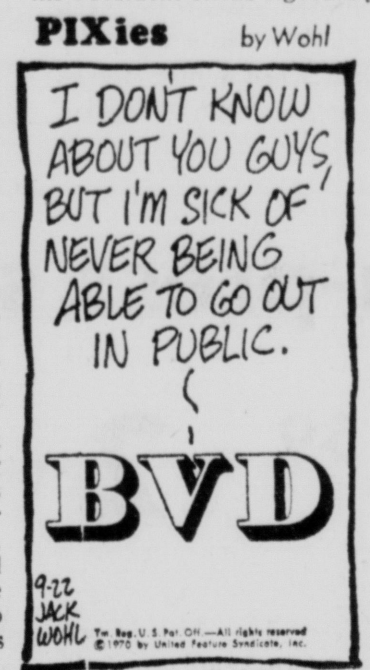

Industry officials have told Paul McCracken, the President's chief economic adviser, that coal, gas and oil prices should be permitted to rise sharply. Otherwise, they warned that producers would not have enough incentive to prevent fuel shortages across the country this winter.

McCracken heads an inter-agency task force which is investigating the threat of fuel shortages. This threat has been aggravated by the Middle East crisis and the anti-pollution campaign.

There's pressure upon building owners, for example, to burn low sulfur fuel oil. The main source is the Middle East where Arab-Israeli tensions have disrupted shipments. Utility companies have also held back construction of fuel plants because of the clamor over pollution.

Meanwhile, our natural gas reserves are dropping low. Gas producers are petitioning the Federal Power Commission for huge price increases, which they claim are necessary to encourage them to explore for more reserves.

A major strike or transportation tie-up or severe winter could leave a lot of homes and buildings short of heat during the cold months ahead.

U.S. Customs Inspectors Intensify War on Planted Pot

(Editor's Note: In its war on narcotics importation, the United States Bureau of Customs seizes a daily average of 350 pounds of smuggled marijuana. Most of it comes across the Mexican border. Tom Tiede has spent a day watching agents in action at one checkpoint. His report follows.)

By TOM TIEDE
LAREDO, Tex.—(NEA)—A padlocked box has been erected in the middle of the U.S.-Mexican International Bridge here. It is a contraband container. Returning tourists are invited, or rather warned, that if they have any marijuana in their possession it would be very prudent to deposit it there.

Hardly anybody does. And so this border crossing is in the midst of an "intensified enforcement program"—a dainty way of saying "pot crackdown." During heavy traffic hours, hordes of customs agents are employed to stop, question, possibly search and perhaps arrest any returning U.S. citizens.

Nobody really likes the idea. Not the tourists who resent the delays and inconveniences. And especially not the customs inspectors who stand hour after hour in 90- to 100-degree heat, breathing in the fog of automobile exhaust, listening to the protest of thousands and thousands who "have nothing to declare, nothing."

To be sure, many people have nothing to declare. Others do but don't. Every day knowing inspectors ferret out hundreds of bottles of tequila, for example, sigh, smile and advise the tourists to cough up the duty.

But it's not tequila they're after—it's the marijuana. Ninety per cent of the American supply comes from Mexico. Of course, no travelers admit to having it to declare either. But from June 1 to Aug. 22 of this year, the nation's customs authorities made 859 marijuana seizures for a total of 27,659 pounds.

It comes across in every imaginable way, says Bill Cochran of the Laredo customs department: "You'd think that by now we'd have uncovered every smuggling trick. But hardly a day goes by where we don't discover a new hiding place."

Like in the spare tire. Or in a sealed-off compartment in the gas tank. Or in the hubcaps. Or the windshield washer bottle. One man once drained his radiator and stuffed it with grass, only to be foiled by an overheated engine and a too-helpful inspector. A Volkswagen owner had special hollow running boards constructed. A third smuggler, obviously a novice, spent hours hiding his pot inside his door upholstery. "Hell," the arresting officer said, "that's one of the first places we look."

According to theory, all tourists are subject to these looks inside, outside and all around. But, in fact, not everyone is. Traffic flows through a preliminary point, just off the bridge, where it is then diverted into the inspection lanes or allowed to enter the country gratis.

Many things determine the route a tourist takes: If he declares anything, if he has a lot of baggage, if he looks suspicious. "No doubt about it," one inspector says, "if they have long hair, a guitar in the back seat and give us the peace sign, we'll give them special attention."

But to keep everyone honest, the customs agents also stage a "blitz" session at least once every day. Bill Cochran says it is "five, 10 or 15 minutes of wild activity when everything that comes across the bridge is thoroughly searched." The blitz is unscheduled and comes as a complete surprise. It may be during the evening rush or the lazy week hours of morning.

It was during a blitz, incidentally, that agents made one of their most memorable Mexican border confiscations. A gal came across wearing a size 44 C bra. Unfortunately, if that is the right T-m to use, it was illegally stuffed.

But be it blitz or routine, the border inspection here is not really designed to capture narcotics or other smuggled goods. It's designed primarily as a scare tactic to discourage people from attempting smuggling in the first place.

As such, it's only partly successful.

Historic U.S.-Mexican ties prohibit any real delays at the border. Veteran travelers learn that, at worst, only the really suspicious are subject to harassment.

So the smart smuggler plays it cool. He does not have baggage showing in his back seat. He does not dress in psychedelic rags. If detained, he answers agents briefly and pleasantly.

As a result, the cool smuggler seems to have extraordinary success. "For every pound of pot we get," groans a customs agent Cochran, "at least 10 slip past us."

Plass, is now interviewing prospective homemakers at the office located at YWCA, 209 Clinton Avenue, Kingston, and is available for questions weekdays from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

The Homemaker Service is looking for mature women—and maybe men—who have had practical experience in home management and who are in good health. Once recruited the homemaker will be specially trained for this work. A training course is being planned for October 5-October 9 and any person who is employed by Ulster County Homemaker Service will be required to take the course in its entirety. Some of the areas to be covered in the course will be accident prevention and safety; care and management of the home; nutrition; and understanding children, the elderly, and mental illness.

Following the training course, the homemakers will be ready to be placed in homes in Ulster County. Before a family or individual is given a homemaker, a referral will have to be received from a doctor, clergyman or social agency to establish a need. A few situations warranting a homemaker would be a young family where the mother has to be hospitalized for an operation, taking her out of the home for about 10 days. Since there are no grandparents or other family members who can come in to care for pre-school children during the day, the father might be forced to stay home from work unless a homemaker can come in and assume the role of substitute-mother.

Looking toward the ill and elderly, frequently there are situations where a person is ready to be discharged from a hospital but lives alone and is not yet able to function completely alone. The alternative to costly long-term institutionalization might be a homemaker who would go into the home daily to shop, do light housekeeping and prepare a nutritious meal. Finally, a homemaker might be used in an educative capacity in a home where family life is being threatened due to ignorance of nutrition, budgeting, and housekeeping skills.

To provide a truly effective service, the Ulster County Homemaker Service needs as many trained homemakers as possible. If you are a person looking for rewarding, part-time work, stop in or telephone the Homemaker Service Office for further information.

MRS. JOHN B. PLASS, executive director of a new service which will benefit the homemakers in the area. The Homemaker Service is looking for mature women and men who have had practical experience in home management and who are in good health to serve in this program. Mrs. Plass is now holding interviews weekdays from 10 to 2 p. m. at the YWCA, 209 Clinton Avenue. (Freeman photo by Kruh).

Economical Autumn Meal

Those wonderful lazy, hazy days of Autumn harvest are here but beautiful. If you are city-bound, get out and off those concrete highways and try a bumpy country road and see what our great farmers are harvesting. Harvest time, even when it isn't bountiful, is beautiful. A varied truck farm can be as exciting to watch as huge bean or corn field. It's the lush and hush of a crop fulfilled to a nature wonderment that is the beauty to eye and scent. Even better, visit a small county fair. A Bean Festival Fair in Zurich, Ontario was a joy and their way of serving navy beans is something you will want to share with family and friends. Each recipe costs less than a dollar to make.

Maple Leaf Deviled Bean Salad

One 21 ounce can beans
Four hard-cooked eggs, chopped
One-half pound Cheddar cheese, in julienne strips
One-half cup minced onion

One-quarter cup finely chopped celery
One eight-ounce can tomato sauce
One tablespoon mayonnaise
One tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
One tablespoon brown sugar
One tablespoon prepared mustard
Dash pepper and one-quarter teaspoon salt
Dash Tabasco sauce

Drain beans. Add eggs, cheese, onion and celery. Combine remaining ingredients and mix well. Add to bean mixture and chill. Serves six.

Easy Over Bean Salad

One 21-ounce can beans
One-half cup chopped celery
One cup chopped apple
One cup cubed pineapple
Three-quarter cup sliced olives
One-half cup chopped nuts
Two cups shredded lettuce
Four tablespoons French dressing

Pour beans into a colander, rinse briskly under cold water for a few minutes. Let stand till completely drained. In a large mixing or salad bowl, add all ingredients with beans and toss together lightly. Refrigerate for about an hour. Just at serving time moisten with French dressing. Serves four.

Canadian Old Fashioned German Bean Salad

A hearty go-together vegetable with cold cuts or roasts. Boil one pound navy beans with one teaspoon ground ginger till tender. Drain off liquid. For one to one and one-half quart bowl of beans, when cool, add:

One cup sour cream
One tablespoon vinegar
One-quarter to one-half teaspoon salt
Three tablespoons white sugar
One medium onion, chopped fine
Ground black pepper to taste

BEAN SALAD

Every Day Is Salad Day

NEW YORK, N. Y. (NAPS)—Salads play a major role in menus all year around these days. Therefore, we offer two fresh crisp salads to add zest to your dinners now and be welcome on tables at any time.

The first combines shredded cabbage and carrots with a wise choice of other vegetables. The mixture is chilled three days in a sweet and sour marinade made from a blend of corn oil, vinegar and light corn syrup. The final product is worth the three day wait. It keeps crisp and fresh in the refrigerator for several days.

The second recipe is a lettuce slaw. In it, real mayonnaise is blended with green pepper and other seasonings and the dressing is tossed with shredded crisp iceberg lettuce. The mixture is delicious mounded on thick tomato slices.

Relish Salad

1 medium head cabbage, finely shredded
2 carrots, coarsely shredded
2 medium cucumbers, pared and quartered lengthwise
2 small green peppers, chopped

Lightly toss together cabbage, carrots, cucumbers, green pepper and onion in large bowl. Mix together the vinegar, corn syrup, corn oil, salt and pepper; pour over

1 medium onion, minced
1 cup vinegar
1 cup light corn syrup
½ cup corn oil
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
Western iceberg lettuce vegetables. Toss lightly until mixed. Cover tightly. Chill at least three days before serving, tossing salad once each day. Serve on lettuce wedges or rafts. Makes about 12 servings.

Lettuce Slaw

1/3 cup real mayonnaise
¼ cup finely chopped green pepper
1 teaspoon minced onion
1 teaspoon lemon juice
½ teaspoon salt

Combine mayonnaise, green pepper, onion, lemon juice, sugar, salt and pepper. Just before serving, toss with

¼ teaspoon salt
Dash pepper
4 cups shredded western iceberg lettuce
(1 medium head)
6 thick tomato slices
shredded lettuce. Mound on thick tomato slices. Makes about six serving or 3½ cups slaw.

About the Folks

Dorothy V. Darling of Daytona Beach, Fla., and her brother, R. H. VanValkenburg, former principal of School No. 4 in Kingston, spent two months vacation in Kingston and Hensonville.

On Saturday they attended the VanValkenburg family reunion at Windham. More than 200 descendants of Lambert VanVa"enburgh who left Valkenburg, Holland, in 1644, were present at the luncheon and meeting of the Organization of the National Society of the Family of VanValkenburg.

They returned last week to their home at Daytona Beach, Fla.

A Way of Life for Married Students

By MARG ZACK
Minneapolis Tribune
Staff Writer

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP)—French toast, waffles or scrambled eggs were frequently on the dinner menu for Steve and Linda Berg last winter.

The Bergs, who are among the many married college students who have to economize to stay in school, tried to keep their food bill to $50 a month.

"I tried to shop between two stores to take advantage of food bargains at both," Mrs. Berg said. "I ended up thinking discount stores weren't cheaper except for the lead-in items."

Their main problem was that meals were starchy and repetitious, she said.

Married before the start of the past school year, the Bergs found an apartment within walking distance of the St. Paul campus at the University of Minnesota, where both attended classes. This saved parking and car expenses.

They said they furnished their apartment as cheaply as possible. The couch and chair were purchased at a repossessed-furniture store. Berg bought tables and lamps at an auction, and there were hand-me-downs from parents, plus the traditional student bookcase made from boards and bricks.

Both worked part-time. Out of his earnings came money for the rent and utilities, and from hers came the groceries.

But there were things they had to do without.

"I found I couldn't afford pantyhose," Mrs. Berg said. Instead, she wore knee socks.

Berg received his degree in veterinary medicine from the university in the recent graduating ceremonies, and Mrs. Berg will receive her degree in home economics education at the close of the summer session.

They are now living in Trace, Minn., in a new mobile home. And, they said, they are looking forward to a less stringent budget.

Wilburn and Barbara Nelson of Roseville, are so used to economizing it's no longer necessary for them to have a written budget.

One or the other has been in school almost continuously since they were married six years ago.

The Rev. Mr. Nelson, an ordained Lutheran minister, is working toward a doctorate in communications at the University of Minnesota. Mrs. Nelson has a master's in chemistry and works for the North Star Research and Development Institute.

"Don't buy on credit. Pay cash," is the advice the Nelsons said they would give other married students.

"The bills at the end of the month can surprise you," said Mrs. Nelson. "And that 18-per cent interest counts up."

She also said they have found it cheaper to keep a $100 bank balance for a free checking account instead of paying a dime a check.

Mr. Nelson said they manage quite well now on his wife's salary. But when he first came to the university, she was pregnant. So he had two part-time jobs and they lived on those salaries plus scholarships and student loans.

"We never got used to living high," he said. "It was a frugal experience living on my minister's salary the first year out of school."

They live in an older but well-kept apartment not far from the St. Paul campus. When Mr. Nelson doesn't ride his bike to the campus, Mrs. Nelson drops him off so he can ride the intercampus bus to Minneapolis. Then she takes their 3-year-old daughter Becky to a daycare center before she goes to work.

They have given up a spacious two-bedroom apartment in a modern building to move to a smaller one in the student housing on St. Paul campus.

Mrs. Ruesink said that although they will be more crowded, 2-year-old Brant will have room to play outdoors and it will be easier to make babysitting arrangements for him.

During the past school year, Mrs. Ruesink worked from 11 p.m. to 7 a.m., which eliminated the need for a baby sitter.

They cut their living expenses by working as caretakers in the apartment building. Ruesink said many students do this, so they can live in a nicer apartment than they could normally afford.

Ruesink received his undergraduate degree in zoology, then went into the army, so he now uses the G.I. bill for his education.

"My best planning was when I married a nurse," he said.

All three couples all said they spent little for entertainment.

Tasty salads add zest to menus.

Ulster Cleanup Outstanding Job

By ALBERT J. CAWEIN

TOWN OF ULSTER
A hometown beautification program in the Town of Ulster started early in the spring which included the removal of junk cars from highways and adjacent lots has shown gratifying results.

Supervisor Carmine Sabino reports that more than 2,500 junk cars have been collected and removed and described it as an outstanding accomplishment when compared to the results in other communities in the state and Ulster County.

To keep the highways and lots clear of junkers, Supervisor Sabino said he will negotiate a contract with William Schefel for a lease to permit continued use of the junk car depot established earlier this year at Ruby. This will permit those residents who have junk cars to transport them to the Ruby depot for ultimate disposal when enough have accumulated.

Consolidated Metals of Newburgh will continue to cart the junkers from the depot for disposal at their yard in Newburgh. The cars are moved on trailer rigs.

Sabino said that any resident that has a junker problem should call him at the Town Hall in Lake Katrine Grange and arrangements can be made to haul the car to the Ruby depot.

He also noted that the town constables are constantly on the alert to determine if any resident is violating the junk car ordinance. Dumping of junk cars anywhere will not be tolerated, he said. The town is clean now and we intend to keep it clean, he emphasized.

The program to eliminate the junk car problem was initiated by the Town of Ulster Businessmen's Association on Visual Environment Beautification (COVEB) with the assistance of the supervisor. The committee headed by co-chairman Mrs. Bette Maxon and Louis A. Di-

Donna sent letters to all businessmen urging their cooperation in the cleanup drive.

The junk car cleanup was part of an extensive program of environmental improvement, civic development and beautification of CAVEB launched in February.

Fred Francello Jr. has planned recreation for the children so as to permit the parents to meet with the other guests as well as the candidates who will be at the picnic at various times throughout the day. Among the events planned for the children are pony rides and foot races. These and the other games planned will keep the children entertained so that the parents and other adults will have some time to themselves, Francello said.

When children discover a playmate wets the bed—the result can be merciless teasing. And serious psychological problems. Even the entire family can be affected. The cost and work of taking care of a bed-wetting child can cause friction and irritability among parents.

Walter C. Alvarez, M.D., Prof. Emeritus, Mayo Clinic, says: "Bedwetting... is hard on the unhappy child and on the mother... even if his parents do not scold him, he cannot help feeling that he is a terrible nuisance and a disgrace to the family." But now bedwetting, when not caused by organic defect or disease, can be ended. Safely. Permanently. Pacific International has ended bedwetting for tens of thousands of children and adults from ages 4 to 57 in the past two decades. Available are a limited number of valuable 16-page brochures, "Is There A SOLUTION?" Mail coupon NOW for your free copy. No obligation.

VERNON JOE BENJAMIN

Benjamin Assumes Post As Police Commissioner

SAUGERTIES was accepted. Benjamin was appointed to fill the trustee vacancy at a recent special meeting of the board.

Benjamin lost no time in taking over the duties of police commissioner and called a meeting of the news media for Tuesday, Sept. 22 at 7:30 p. m. in the village clerk's office to discuss the matter of police reports released to the press and radio.

The meeting was precipitated by a letter received from Harry M. Thayer, president of WGHQ, Mayor Cox, who read the letter to the board, said that Thayer complained that the village police were withholding the news.

Thayer said in the letter that police officers were given orders by the chief (Gordon Keeley) to release information. The mayor said he would meet with Thayer to discuss the matter.

Cox added that news is not being deliberately withheld and he believed the matter could be resolved.

After a quick conference with members of the media in attendance the mayor then decided on the meeting. The discussion will include the mayor, police commissioner, police chief and members of the news media.

Hospitalization insurance coverage for about 30 village employees was approved upon completion of a recent study and the board last night adopted a resolution awarding the coverage to the Prudential Insurance Company.

Village Clerk James V. Gage noted after the meeting that a representative of the State Pure Waters Authority will confer with village officials at a future date to discuss the possible financial assistance available to the village for the construction of a secondary sewerage treatment plant. A county report of a study conducted for the Town of Saugerties indicated that considerable state and federal aid would be available if the village plant were improved and enlarged with a secondary treatment plant to accommodate the Barclay Heights area of the township, it was noted in The Freeman some time ago.

Fire Commissioner Richard J. Underhill announced that the fire chief's emergency car was now in service and he thanked the Public Works Department for the conversion job. The car was the old police cruiser. It has already seen service twice, the commissioner said.

Underhill commended the Saugerties Fire Department, Glasco, Centerville and Cedar Grove companies for the conduct of a fire training exercise held at Cantine Island recently. A building was burned down in a controlled fire exercise.

The board approved four new members of the R. A. Snyder Fire Company, Clark Johnson, William Kimble, Thomas Morgan and Marshall Siracusano, all of the village.

Representatives of the State Fire Underwriters will be making an inspection tour of village fire fighting facilities and the village water supply system, it was reported.

Mobile Hospital Project Scheduled at Auditorium

KINGSTON A 200-bed mobile hospital will be set up in Kingston tonight beginning at 7:30 p. m. in the Kingston Municipal Auditorium, according to announcement made by Charles L. Arnold, director of Ulster County Civil Defense.

The project is being coordinated by Arnold's department in conjunction with Benedictine and Kingston Hospitals as well as the Ulster County Ambulance Association.

The last time such an undertaking took place was three years ago.

The equipment was expected to arrive from Wingdale this afternoon and was to be packed in boxes in a knocked-down form. Included were, 2000 beds plus about 20 litters, also operating and X-ray tables, sterile supplies, emergency power (a generator), operating room supplies and sufficient medical supplies to last 30 days.

About 50 persons will take part in the exercise including our or five doctors, 15 to 20 nurses and 20 medical aids.

Emmet Shields of the New York State Department of Health will present the opening lecture on the nature of the mobile hospital and its setup.

Those taking part will then set up the hospital and run simulated casualties through. The program will be concluded with a critique.

Dr. Milton Grover, chief radiologist of Benedictine Hospital will be in charge of the hospital exercise.

Sister Gabrielle, Benedictine Hospital Director of Nursing Service and Mrs. Gloria Erodhead of Kingston Hospital will also direct certain phases of the exercise.

Gerard Nocton, assistant administrator of Benedictine Hospital and Miss Mary Finger, a assistant administrator of Kingston Hospital are co-administrators for the hospital exercise.

Ulster County Civil Defense has its own mobile emergency hospital facility stored at the Eastern Correctional Institution.

Arnold also announced that he has received word from M.S. Ansenio, head of the New York State Civil Defense Commission, commending eight members of the Ulster County Civil Defense for their fine performance at the New York State Fair Civil Defense Exhibit in Syracuse recently.

Rockefeller's plans for Friday now include an appearance at 10 a. m. at the New York State Conservation Council meeting at the Laurels Country Club in Monticello. From there he will travel to Dutchess County where he will attend groundbreaking ceremonies for a new addition to the Northern Dutchess Community Hospital in Rhinebeck, after which he will visit a water treatment plant in Poughkeepsie.

The Ulster County GOP has indicated in the past that Rockefeller would perhaps make more than one visit to Ulster County before Nov. 3 and is therefore hopeful that he may yet fit it in his schedule at a later date.

Rocky, Goldberg Cancel Visits

KINGSTON scheduled Friday was "too tight" to fit in the Kingston

Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller and his Democratic opponent, Arthur J. Goldberg, both cancelled scheduled visits to Kingston later this week.

Rockefeller was expected at a noon luncheon at the Holiday Inn Friday and Goldberg had planned a breakfast meeting and press conference at the Gov. Clinton Hotel Thursday.

The cancellation of Rockefeller's visit was announced this morning by Ulster County Republican Chairman Albert Spada who said that the governor's visit was "too tight" to fit in the Kingston

Ulster County Democratic Chairman Aaron Klein also announced Goldberg's cancellation this morning saying that no reason had been given for the unexpected turn of events. Asked if another date had been set for a visit from the former Supreme Court Justice, he said no.

Seniors' Theater Party

KINGSTON
The first Senior Citizens Theatre part of the season, at no charge to Senior Citizens, will be held Friday, Sept. 25 at the Community Theater, Broadway and Cedar Street, according to an announcement by Alexander Yosman, coordinator of the Senior Citizens' Advisory Council.

Yosman said that once again, through the cooperation of Robert Battaglia and Margaret Thomas, of the Walter Reade Theater, a theater party will be held for Senior Citizens at no charge. An additional attraction will be a coffee social hour between 1 p.m. and 1:45 p.m. with the movie scheduled to commence at 2 p.m., a double feature, The Odd Couple and Barefoot in the Park.

Battaglia, manager of the Walter Reade Theater, said the Reade group was very happy to provide senior citizen theater parties for the past three years and was sure that they will continue this practice in recognition of the senior citizens of the area. He also reminded senior citizens that special discount cards for admission to regular movies to any Reade Theater in the area were available at the box office of the Community and Mayfair Theaters.

Yosman said he was looking forward to greeting the senior citizens of the area once again and urged all senior citizens to make every effort to attend this gala event.

'Vista' Has Debut at The College

STONE RIDGE
A new and official publication of Ulster County Community College is off the press with the first issue of "Vista" published this month.

According to its editors, it was born of two universal needs—the need to communicate and the need to be communicated with.

"Many of us on the staff of the college, feel that, at least in the last year, our success in meeting these needs has been limited," they state.

Anticipating that the new publication will not contribute to the creation of new problems of understanding, but promote the resolution of some problems, and shed light on the discussion of others, it is hoped that it will lead to increased mutuality and rapport.

It is a house organ whose primary function is to provide information needed by everyone associated with UCCC. In the main, it will be written by the administrative staff, but contributions will be welcomed from anyone in the college community. President George B. Erbstein's assistant for community relations, James Haviland is editor.

Dr. Erbstein, commenting on the publication said, "Vista is not intended to be a competitor to the student newspaper. Its function is to provide a more formal means of communicating within the entire community of the college . . . Vista will reach everyone and will be the official source of announcements, schedules and other college-wide notices. It will also give everyone a chance to be heard."

Woltman and Robert R. Haines were responsible for the production of the new club film.

A new model locomotive, a scale production of old number 24 from the Ulster & Delaware Railroad, formed the centerpiece for the speaker's table.

Top Performances Mark Football Openers

A STARR in ECLIPSE — Green Bay Packer Center Ken Bowman (L) and Quarterback Bart Starr were a picture of dejection as they sat on the bench during the fourth quarter of the Packers-Lions game Sunday. The Lions shut out the Packers, 40-0, for first Packer shut-out in 12 years and one of the team's worst beatings in years. (UPI TELEPHOTO).

By MORT LAFFIN

Outstanding individual performances were the order of the day Saturday as the scholastic football season got underway in the Mid-Hudson Valley. Players such as Joe Riley and Ralph Longendyke of Kingston, Perry Monroe, Highland, Mike Alecca, Rondout, Jay Ackert and John Palonis, New Paltz, John Langling and Chuck Lemons, Onteora, and Ralph Petrillo, Newburgh, made their presence felt immediately. And, it looks from here that these names will be appearing in print regularly throughout the season. Defense was also the word of the day for Onteora, Rondout, Highland and New Paltz as the unsung heroes of the sport performed hard and well in their respective contests. Kingston lost a 14-12 decision at Troy, but showed some very bright spots. Riley may be on his way to becoming an outstanding runner for the Maroons. The little scabbard scored first on a 20-yard run that brought the fans to their feet.

Riley Brilliant

Although a junior, Riley showed flashes of brilliance and promise of things to come as he slashed his way through the rugged defense of the Flying Horses time and again. On the touchdown run, "Little Joe" started off tackle and the right side, the way the play was designed and the way the blocking was supposed to go. The hole didn't open and he slid to the outside, faking the defensive end and halfback off their feet. Once in the open, Riley turned on the speed and scampered on into the end zone for the score. Longendyke was simply great in the Kingston pass defense, slapping down pass after pass. He also was able to come up fast from the secondary to stop running plays and was inserted into the offense, catching a 25-yard pass from Ralph Perry. The Maroons need help in the defensive line and couldn't muster any kind of consistent pass rush. They were also weak on trap plays off the tackles. The offensive line, which blocking well on running plays, didn't afford Perry the time he needed to complete passes in clutch situations.

Weak Tackling

Also defensively, Kingston appeared weak in one-on-one tackling and it is a good bet that Coaches Tony Bialotto, George Neher and Dick McCormick will have the Maroons working hard on that part of their game. Perry, by the way, did a very good job of play-calling and sparking his club. The little signal caller is rated, in some quarters, behind Glenn Littlefield, who missed the first game due to injuries. But, he gave a good account of himself, calling a near-perfect game, with the coaches sending in plays on very few occasions. He and Littlefield give the Maroons excellent depth in a key position.

Alecca and Perry will face each other Saturday as Highland and Rondout knock heads at Perry's home field. Both boys are tremendous athletes, playing other sports at their respective schools.

Alecca is fleet-footed, moving like a deer down the sidelines. He is a great broken-field runner, but is strong enough to blow through the holes.

Perry Strong

Perry is a well-built, strong boy whose speed is deceptive and whose power is devastating. Perry can beat you many ways, inside, outside and is an outstanding defensive performer. His two touchdowns runs against Saugerties were power slashes. Once in the open, he, too can go the distance.

Onteora showed great faith in the defensive as the Indians elected to kick off against Red Hook after winning the toss. Langling and Lemons were great both ways for Onteora. Dan Brown and Vlad Hoyt shared the quarterbacking duties. Hoyt, though possessing less experience than Brown, is big and had great poise.

Coach Larry Karas was quick to cite defensive coach Joe Freidel and his charges for outstanding performances. The Onteora Athletic Director had his boys up and ready for the Red Raiders of Red Hook.

Freeman Sports Editor, Charles Tiano, covering the game, said that Daryl Work, a Red Hook exchange student from New Zealand and an ex-rugby player, was one of the finest high school punters he had ever seen. Work boomed three for a 42-yard average.

Ackert established himself as a fine quarterback, running a New Paltz attack that did everything but score points. Actually the touchdown drive was a fine one with Ackert running the option. Coach John Ford elected to go for the win after Harold Anderson tied the score and Ackert scored once. But, a motion penalty brought the ball back to the eight and Ackert again fell short on the option, but only by a foot.

John Palonis did an outstanding job on defense, harassing the Millbrook offense into mistakes. He was in on tackles time and again with a fine record of one-on-one tackles.

Petrillo Simply Great

Petrillo, rated this season as a High School All-American at quarterback for Newburgh, directed an outstanding attack against the Admirals. His calls were flawless and his passing was right on the money. "Pistol Pete" is also a fine defensive back and punter. He scored a touchdown, going 18 yards with an interception. If Saturday is any indication of things to come, area football fans are in for a real treat this season as the Mid-Hudson Valley once again becomes the fall showcase for outstanding high school athletes and teams.

Coleman Soccer Opener

By IRA FUSFELD

Scoring goals will be the major concern of new coach William Boyd when his John A. Coleman HS soccer team opens the season tomorrow at home against Cardinal Farley Military Academy.

The Statesmen were drubbed ten times out of eleven last year primarily because they couldn't muster up an offensive attack. Returning goaltender Don Hastings averaged some 21 shorts a game as opposing forwards continually put the pressure on the Coleman side of the field.

Ten others besides Hastings are back which should help. Mike Jasinski, Mark Weber, Tom Sullivan, Dan Spada, Denis Howard, David Kren, Bob Cooke, Jim Cranston, Rick Vertetis, and Mike Elgo make up the heart of the now-veteran booters.

Tomorrow's contest is the first of ten for the Statesman. All games start at 4 p.m.

Brooklyn Booters Blast Sport Club

MORGAN HILL

Hobbled by poor goal tending, a badly weakened Kingston Sport Kicker squad dropped its Premier League opener, 5-2, to the Brooklyn Sport Club as the German-American Soccer Association's 1970-71 season got under way at Oehler's Soccer Stadium.

Brooklyn ran up a 5-0 lead before the locals were able to get on the scoreboard.

Jose Rodriguez, the outside right, outmaneuvered the new Kicker goalie, Peter Manzelian, in the very first minute of play to put the visitors ahead, 1-0.

Rodriguez crashed through again at the 36 minute mark, when Mazelian did not respond. Gerd Wettengel, the Brooklyn center forward, had connected at 26 minutes on a breakthrough. Pedro Dardon the inside right, closed the first half scoring on a pass from Wettengel at the 44 minute mark. Six minutes into the second half, Dardo picked up his second goal for Brooklyn after Mazelian tried to kick the ball and missed it.

Trailing 5-0, one of the worst deficits in the club's history at Oehler's, the Kickers finally crashed through at the 54th minute on a 11-meter penalty kick by Jim Reinhardt after a foul on Fred Mohr. Fifteen minutes later, Mohr got off the most spectacular goal of the day — a 30-yard beauty.

The Kickers pressed hard in the final minutes but missed three potential goals by inches. Winnie Soddemann was outstanding on defense, while Reinhardt and Mohr put on the best offensive show.

Next Sunday, the Kickers travel to Spring Valley and will have Joel Thompson of Springfield College as their new goalie. Thompson, a senior at the college, did not return to the team this fall and is eligible to play with the Kickers.

The lineup:

Bobby Bottcher Captures Feature at Orange County

MIDDLETOWN — Bobby Bottcher, starting in the 20th slot, took the lead on the 84th lap, passing Rags Carter to win the final modified feature race at the Orange County Fair Speedway. Carter, who had taken the lead on the 23rd lap, held it all the way to the 84th. Buzzy Reutimann came in third after a late pit stop.

In the final point standings for the modified championship, Will Cagle came out on top taking his fifth straight title. Rich Eurich won the limited sportsmen final standings although Bruce DeGraff won the last race.

The Late Model title is still in doubt. DeGraff, Franklin, N.J. took the limited 20-lap feature in the record time of 8:48.8. It was his first feature win for 1970. Next week, the limited sportsmen will highlight the race card with a championship 50-lap race for $500.00.

Disqualify Gretel In Second Race

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — The deadlocked 1-1 because the New Australians, with some wind York Yacht Club race committee taken out of their sails, go back to the disqualify Gretel II Mon in pursuit of the elusive America, making her the loser instead of the winner of Sunday's ca Cup again today.

But they'll be down 2-0 to brilliant match.

America's Intrepid instead of Officially, the Aussies kept their upper lips stiff. Sir Frank Packard, head of the Gretel II syndicate, said he was "disappointed with the decision. But the best thing to do is to go out and win four straight."

A 15-25 knot southwest wind is predicted, giving Gretel II a chance to see if she can take her rival in heavy air as well as light.

Both yachts had protested following a collision at the start of the second race. The committee upheld Intrepid and ruled Gretel II had fouled her.

Privately some Australians, noting that the race committee was judge and jury for a race it was running, called the ruling "a hometown decision."

Jim Hardy, Gretel II's co-helmsman, was more moderate. He said on being notified: "I don't see how they could have reached that verdict" and turned back to work on his boat which had been slightly damaged in the collision.

Martin Visser, who shares steering with Hardy, said the committee "was in an impossible situation. They want to be fair. But they still don't want to see the cup leave that shelf in New York."

There has been some talk that protests of the cup races should be judged by an international panel.

B. Devereaux Barker III, chairman of the NYYC race committee, said such a body was a possibility that would be considered. "My own mind is not made up."

But, he added: "We try to be men of honor and I think members of the committee would not reach their position in life if they were not honorable men."

"It is probably hard to convince world opinion that we're impartial. But I know in my own conscience and in that of the entire committee that we were entirely impartial to both sides."

Barker was asked if both sides agree on the facts of the dispute? "No. Certainly not!" Visser cried before Barker could reply.

Protests by both yachts were disallowed in the first race over a starting incident.

Gretel II's loss of a race she had initially won to the race committee's judgment was the first such incident in America's Cup racing since 1895.

Neumaier said that "apparently the state auditors have repeated the charge they made earlier that $118,000 was allocated by students for the spring weekend. This is somewhat confusing in view of a memo dated Sept. 1, 1970 from Deputy Comptroller Ives, after reexamination of the figures saying that they determined the spring weekend cost to be about $52,000."

Neumaier pointed out that while the college procedures were in accordance with the comptrollers directives of March

Paltz Officials Comment On Report

NEW PALTZ. 20, 1968, forbidding any interference by the college administration, he as well as student leaders felt that the fiscal procedures were in need of revision. He called attention to the Sept. 1, 1970 appointment of Stan Clark to the post of business manager of the New Paltz Faculty-Student Association and the impending addition of a qualified full time accountant to the staff.

The student government association and the student faculty association are in varying stages of complete reorganization, Neumaier said. He expressed hope that the courts, comptroller, state university trustees and central office would provide clarification of the fiscal framework for student government operation.

In further comment the vice president of administration at New Paltz M. Douglas Stafford said, "the real tragedy at New Paltz is that while the college was growing from 500 students in the 1950's to 5,000 in 1968 and undergoing a multi-million dollar expansion, needed additional administration staff were not provided and business management practices were not kept up to date."

Stafford said that long overdue reforms have been initiated. "Only now are we getting the computer services which the college should have had four or five years ago," he said. Formerly administrative director of the U. S. Peace Corps, Stafford came to New Paltz in March, 1970 to update business management practices at the state university college.

Stafford said today, "there is an immediate area of special concern in the past records of accounting and bookkeeping procedures of the office of the Alumni Association. As we did in the case of administration of student fees, we have asked the state auditors to examine in the 1950's to 5,000 in 1968 and this and give us a report. Naturally we hope they will let us read it before they publish."

Four of Seven Largest Banks Cut Prime Rates

NEW YORK (AP) — Four of the nation's seven largest banks have cut their prime interest rates in the latest round of reductions.

The cuts in the prime rate to 7 1/2 per cent from 8 per cent was triggered Monday by Morgan
Guaranty Trust Co. of New York, the nation's fifth largest bank.

By the end of the business day more than 40 banks, both big and small, had cut the rate they charge their biggest and most creditworthy customers.

Among the big banks that followed were Bank of America of San Francisco, the world's largest bank; Chase Manhattan, the nation's third largest bank, and Chemical Bank, the nation's sixth largest. Chase Manhattan and Chemical Bank are headquartered in New York.

A spokesman for the Federal Reserve Bank of New York said that "directly and immediately there would be little effect on consumers."

Dear Abby

Ideas Aren't Sound

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
(© 1970 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: My sister has a beach front summer place on a lake. She also has two boys, ages 8 and 10, and two girls, 9 and 12. When the weather permits, she lets the boys play on the beach and in the water completely nude. However, she has the girls wear swimsuits.

We have two children, a boy 9 and a girl 11, who would enjoy a vacation at the lake, but I don't like this nude boy bit. My husband says I am wrong.

When I discussed it with my sister, she said it was good to bring up boys without secrets from their sisters, and I should do the same. I half jokingly asked her if she thought Dear Abby would agree with her and she bet you would because you had a pliant sense of fundamental realities. I agreed to write to you and show her your answer. I also agreed to concur with it. What do you say?

MASS. MRS. DEAR MRS.: I'm sorry to disappoint your sister, but my sense of fundamental realities isn't as "pliant" as she thinks it is. Ask your sister how come if it's "good" to bring up boys without secrets from their sisters, it isn't equally good to bring up girls without secrets from their brothers.

DEAR ABBY: You advised "NEW YORKER," who picked up a $5 bill on the street, to give her companion half, since she spotted it together and she had promised to do so. That may have been socially correct, but it was legally wrong.

I don't know how it is in other states, but in Utah, one who finds lost property and keeps it or diverts it to his own use is subject to arrest. Found property must be turned over to the police who make an attempt to locate the owner. If after a reasonable amount of time, the owner cannot be located, the property is then turned over to the finder who then becomes the legal owner. This law is found in the larceny statutes, and is called larceny by finder.

LT. EDWIN HYMAS, POLICE DEPARTMENT, OGDEN, UTAH

DEAR LT. HYMAS: Thanks for writing up this naive columnist. There goes another long-held illusion, namely:

"Finders keepers. Losers weepers."

Readers hear this: The finder who becomes a keeper without first attempting to locate the loser can become not only a weeper himself, but a loser as well.

DEAR ABBY: A friend has asked my advice on a matter, and I am asking you. Six months ago this friend lost his wife of many years. He is 64. He met a widow in church. She is 60. They are planning to be married around Thanksgiving. The lady wants a church wedding, which my friend thinks is fine, but thinks she is going overboard with the wedding plans. She wants to walk down the aisle as first-time brides do, and have her son give her away. She also wants attendants — only "a few," she says, but she would like to wear a long, white, lacey gown with a veil. My friend thinks that under the circumstances and because of their ages, the less "fuss" involved the better. He prefers a quiet church wedding with only a few of the immediate family on both sides present. Your advice is solicited.

HIS FRIEND DEAR FRIEND: I'm inclined to agree with your friend. But he and his lady had better get together on a definition of "fuss" — or there is apt to be a large one.

DEAR ABBY: I laughed with tears in my eyes when I read that letter from the girl who unhooked her bra to let her premed boy friend give her a backrub. Many years ago, when I was a pre-med student, I used that old backrub technique. I soon learned that if I could get a girl to unhook her bra, even tho she was lying on her face, I'd have no trouble after that. OLD BACKRUBBER (MINNESOTA '29)

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," Send $1 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069.

CARROLL RICHTER'S HOROSCOPE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A more charming and more popular. AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Trying to please those persons who attract you, and vice versa, makes this a fine day for you. Buying a nice gift for loved one will bring you much favor now. Devotion has to be shown to be returned. PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Thoughtfulness to those who live with you is a must now, when they are feeling out of sorts. A new interest requires more work to make it successful. Evening should be spent at home with family.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) If you make a point to keep promises with kin, they will cooperate with you. The favor of any who are close to you should be rendered. An emotional problem can be solved through kindness. TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Fine day for communications and correspondence and handling transportation matters intelligently. Being sure to time your appointments correctly is the best way to be sure to keep them.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Contacting persons who are business experts is your best method for getting ahead in the near future. Find out where you can cut down on expenses. Try not to live so much beyond your means.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You are able to do almost anything you like today, especially that which is of a social nature, so be with the right groups. Others will appreciate your charm now. Avoid the non-achievers. LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) A private matter that you would hardly be proud of should be forgotten now. Put those ideas to work before it is too late. This will bring advancement quickly.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Being with good friends is fine provided you are kind with them, since they are pressured and need thoughtfulness, not criticism. Assist where you can. Make better plans for the future tonight.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Plan your time so that you are able to see persons you like more often. Be alert to changes that are good for you. Correspond with those out-of-town and get ideas from them that are helpful. Avoid persons you do not understand.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) This can be a fine day if you use ingenuity in doing work ahead of you. Find the best way to have greater health and true dynamism. Why not step out to see friend you have been neglecting lately.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) If you tell those persons you admire that you like them, you can deepen friendships and be happier in the future. Bring out that particular talent you have. Use a better system to follow in the days ahead.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You have to study every angle of the work ahead but get the information you need from higher-ups. Find the right items of clothing to make you

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY...he or she will require an excellent education to bring out fine talents, plus the ability to get along with the finest of persons. A public life would be ideal for your gifted progeny provided you teach early to complete whatever is once started, since there is a tendency here to put things off. The mind is a very inquisitive one.

NO SCRIPT: A performance that is not taken from a set script is said to be ad lib. The word is an abbreviation of the Latin "ad libitum" which means at pleasure or off the lip. The word was long used in music denoting a place where the musician could substitute his own notes in a performance.

Walt Disney's True Life Adventures

Jean Adams' TEEN FORUM

TWO YEARS: (Q.) When I was 13 a boy and I thought we were in love and went too far. I did not get into trouble, but ever since then my parents have been very picky about the boys I go with.

There is only one boy they will let me date. They like him more than I do. There are three more I'd rather date, but they are afraid of all of them.

They are afraid it will happen again. It won't. That was two years ago and I'm trustworthy now. How can I get them to realize it?—15 and Watched in Beaumont, Texas.

(A.) You did not get pregnant, but you did get into trouble. You are still in trouble. Trouble is the price we pay for making a mistake.

It would be much healthier for you to date several boys now instead of just one. Keep looking for boys who are nice and who appeal to you. Bring them home so your parents can see and know them.

When you find three or four who are acceptable to them and interesting to you—and also trustworthy—then you can go out and have good fun, and your parents can breathe freely again.

PUT DOWN: (Q.) My friend keeps putting my steady girl down. She has a very cute figure. His girl friend is fat and ugly. But I don't put her down. When I tell him to stop, he just laughs. What can I do besides hit him?—Getting Angry in Monroe, Mich.

(A.) Your friend may be jealous of you, or he may just have to belittle somebody to build himself up. No matter what his trouble is, tell him quietly, one more time, no more put-downs.

Then if he keeps on, mark him off your list of friends and quit having anything to do with him.

And Still More Lawyers

NEW YORK (AP) — "The Young Lawyers" have joined "Storefront Lawyers." The former, making its debut Monday night on ABC, is really very much like the latter which started last week on CBS.

The main difference is that "The Young Lawyers" are law students practicing with cases brought into a neighborhood law office supervised by a member of the Massachusetts bar, while "Storefront Lawyers" are young attorneys employed by a law firm.

It is one of those occasional coincidences when two networks decide to handle similar ideas. The ABC series has a number of things in its favor, the greatest of which is Lee J. Cobb, an interesting, powerful performer even when he doesn't have much to do.

The series will focus on two students, played by Zalman King and Judy Pace. They will represent persons who can't afford a lawyer. The client in the opening episode was a young interne who when off duty had pulled an injured boy out of a wrecked car. The boy's father, convinced the young doctor's impulsive action had hurt rather than saved the boy, sued for $50,000.

The father withdrew his action before the case went to the jury after the young defense attorney showed the doctor was not one of those who played life safe but was willing to become involved.

"The Silent Force" which followed on ABC looks like a reincarnation of good old "Gangbusters." Three undercover agents will crack down each week on some segment of the criminal syndicate. Then a voice-of-doom announcer will say "one more tentacle cut from the octopus of organized crime—but only one."

The tentacle in the opening show was a district attorney who had sold out to the syndicate in exchange for help in filling gubernatorial ambitions. A local sheriff was framed and jailed but the good guys got there in time and caught the villain, no mean feat in a half hour.

Performers are Ed Nelson and Percy Rodriguez, both "Peyton Place" alumni, and Lynda Day. It is straight, old-fashioned action stuff, the sort of thing that "The FBI" handles in a smoother more leisurely way. But it is an excellent lead-in for the pro football game which, in most of the nation, will follow.

The New York Jets and Cleveland Browns meeting was an auspicious beginning for ABC's experiment with Monday night games. It was even interesting for viewers who couldn't care less about sports. The big colorful cast had a star, Joe Namath, and even a comedian, a commentator named Howard Cosell of thing that "The FBI" handles in a smoother more leisurely way. But it is an excellent lead-in for the pro football game course, plenty of action.

Agnew, Student-Heated Time

NEW YORK (UPI)—The bitter student, face to face with Spiro T. Agnew, charged the vice president's speeches had done much to build an aura of violence and said Agnew was a "precursor of violence."

Flushing and spirited but possessed, the vice president in reply struck at "the disgusting permissive attitudes of the people in command of college campuses."

The exchange flared at the end of a 90-minute taping of a television show in which Agnew debated with five student leaders Monday night. They appeared on the David Frost Show, scheduled to be aired Friday in most large cities of its broadcast circle.

The student who voiced the charge was Richard Silverman, president of the Associated Students of the University of Washington, who is studying for a doctorate in political science in the field of urban violence.

Also participating was Yale Law School student Gregory B. Craig.

The preceding sections of the show, while often critical on both sides, was conducted with generally good spirits. Student unrest and Agnew's recent addresses got a going over.

Discussion of the Kent State University campus slayings led to the heated final five minutes. Agnew said "the evidence seems to indicate the National Guard overreacted" in the Kent shootings that killed four students.

"I don't excuse what they did," Agnew said of the guard, but he added it was amazing how the American people had "forgotten the precursors" of the shooting—the two nights of rioting, the burning of the ROTC Building and the cutting of hoses of firemen trying to fight the blaze.

Silverman said Agnew had "a strange sense about what happened" at Kent State in suggesting the cause was rock throwing and protests.

"You talk about an aura of violence, about precursors of violence. And there's one small failing left out here. And this is the distinction between your being a political joke and your being a very serious man."

"And that is that you yourself, singularly, are perhaps the greatest precursor of violence in this country. You have done more to build an aura of violence, to build a

Cambodians Take Key Point

PHNOM PENH (UPI)—Cambodian troops led by an elite heavy concentrations of Communist paratrooper corps captured the North Vietnamese stronghold of Tang Kau today in a thrust that broke an eight-day lull in the biggest government drive of the Cambodian campaign.

Early reports said the Cambodians met little resistance in seizing Tang Kau, 52 miles north of Phnom Penh.

The Cambodian Command also announced that North Vietnamese and Viet Cong forces attacked six miles from the heart of Phnom Penh Monday night in the closest fighting to the capital in nearly a month.

Other Communist troops pounded a huge Cambodian task force on Highway 6, 49 miles north of Phnom Penh, in a five-hour bombardment. Casualties were not announced in either engagement.

The Cambodian Command said today government troops called in air strikes and naval gunfire from river boats on the Mekong to drive off the attackers at Moat Krasas Krao, six miles east of Phnom Penh.

Viet Cong and North Vietnamese forces also harassed Cambodian units Monday night at Kirirom Dam, 56 miles west-southwest of Phnom Penh. The attacks came after military sources said an unknown number of the estimated 5,000 Communist troops at Kirirom had begun moving out of their mountain base areas into surrounding lowlands.

Congress Meets on POWs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress called a joint session today to hear a report on treatment of American GIs held prisoner in Southeast Asia.

The special message by former astronaut Frank Borman follows his recent tour of more than a dozen nations as a special emissary for President Nixon in an unsuccessful bid to gain the POWs' release.

Borman, who also appeared before a House-Senate session following his 1968 moon flight, told Nixon earlier this month he had gotten a sympathetic response on his international tour but no significant breakthrough.

Borman's mission was designed to get proper treatment for prisoners if he could not gain their release.

Nine former prisoners of war were invited to sit on the House floor with House and Senate members during the special session. About 80 wives of others still held prisoner or missing in action planned to watch the proceedings from the galleries.

Speaker John W. McCormack, when he announced plans for the event, called it "a manifestation of the unity of the American people and their deep resentment over the manner in which these prisoners have been treated."

An estimated 1,500 Americans are listed as prisoners of war or missing in action in the Vietnam war.

The House and Senate have approved without dissent a resolution which "strongly protests the treatment of United States servicemen held prisoner by North Vietnam and the National Liberation Front of South Vietnam."

Two Dixie Governors Happy With Middle Road Policy

BILOXI, Miss. (AP) — Two southern Democratic governors say their party is moving into the political center nationally, averting what one of them described as a threatened take-over by "the so-called new left."

Gov. Robert W. Scott of North Carolina, chairman of the Democratic Governors Caucus, and Gov. Robert E. McNair of South Carolina said Lawrence F. O'Brien, the party chairman, is guiding the national organization to a middle-of-the-road position.

And both men disputed Vice President Spiro T. Agnew's statement that the Democrats are identified in the mind of the voter with radical liberal elements and violent dissenters.

The Republicans would like to think that," McNair said in an interview at the Southern Governors Conference.

"There's more political rhetoric by the vice president with his usual skillful use of words," said Scott.

"The Republicans would like to nail us to the wall as Democrats and use a blanket indictment that all Democrats are extreme liberals," Scott said. "That is just not the case."

McNair and Scott both pronounced themselves satisfied with O'Brien's course as national chairman. McNair in particular had been a vehement critic of O'Brien's predecessor, Sen. Fred R. Harris of Oklahoma.
